...how about ACOG Sept Bulletin on POP replaces earlier one (FEB 2007) and totally "oks" vaginal mesh stating..."patients should consent to surgery with an understanding of the postoperative risks and complications and lack of long-term outcomes data." (Duh...no kidding) Note: no further use of the word experimental! Well, this is one I am taking credit for...I led the charge on this and never thought we would get a complete "replacement" of the earlier bulletin. This is a major victory! Vince

Good evening,

On behalf of Cathy Herbert, I am sending you a finalized version of "Best options, techniques, and coding tips for pelvic prolapse repair," a supplement to the September issue of OBG Management.

We have incorporated your comments and have highlighted changes that we made to the text in magenta for your convenience. There were a 2 points that we specifically wanted to note:

1) We have included images of mesh products and a brief description of each. There were no captions when we received the images, so we identified the products and wrote the descriptors. Could you please review this section, on pages s4 and s5, for accuracy?

2) We cited "Nilsson CG, et al. Seven-year follow-up of the tension-free vaginal tape procedure for treatment of urinary incontinence. Obstet Gynecol. 2004;104:1259-1262." for Dr Lucente's statement that data on the TVT procedure show no long-term sequelae. Please let me know if this is not the correct reference.

We need to send this to the printer very shortly, so could you please let me know by the end of the day on Thursday, August 16, if you have any final changes.

Thank you for your contribution to OBG Management!

Kind regards,
Sarah
